

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Feb. 13

A DAY in which new projects are paramount, with the mind and creative abilities high pitched for ambitious projects, is forecast. While these may be endorsed by superiors and employers, there is some danger of overdoing. There may be a change of plans of surroundings, but refrain from moves that are too radical.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for change in plans and place. There will be sudden urges to put over ambitious projects, with employers aiding and abetting. But do not attempt to go too far with such initiative and enterprise. A child born on this day may possess fine creative talents and originality. In its high enterprise early training to avoid overdoing is admonished.

PORK STORAGE

A good way to preserve part of the fresh pork at butchering time is to store it in freezer lockers where these are available, says Ruth Foster of the Missouri College of Agriculture. There are many ways to prepare fresh pork, which is a delicious food and high in nutritive value, but the too frequent use of it in the diet at butchering time makes the family tire of it. If used in excess quantities it sometimes causes digestive disturbances because of the high fat content.

Blood Runs Cold

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Lathrop's wife had an opportunity to murder Joan Kent while she was waiting for Lathrop to come out of the apartment house. Christine finds a note added to her list of questions telling her to keep out. Later the paper disappears.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR Episode In the Night

THE room seemed suddenly warm and oppressive. I couldn't take my eyes from Richard's thin, pale face. It was a very unpleasant attention, the thought that he might be involved. But I kept forgetting the others in the house: Adrienne Wells alone in the front apartment; Mr. Kimball and Ishi in the shop; Whitefield in his room up on the third floor; and Mrs. Evans, with her long ears, in the attic.

Dirck was examining the board closely. "I wouldn't mention this to anyone," he cautioned us, looking up with grave eyes. "Someone is evidently trying to frighten you, Chris. It may be just a practical joke."

"I wish I thought so," I said with some asperity.

"What is this all about, anyway?" Richard looked at Dirck. And briefly Dirck explained it to him. Then he turned to me. "Do me a favor, Chris. This might not do any good, but I'd like to experiment. Before you go to bed tonight make another list and tack it to the board, just as you did before. Tomorrow we may have another visit from this person. And try not to touch the board any more than you can help. There may be fingerprints."

"I hate to be used as bait," I said, but finally I agreed with some reluctance. It gave me a queer feeling to have my apartment enlisted to lure a murderer. And it was evidently a person who kept a close watch on all of my moves. I'd been out of my room less than ten minutes to go down to the corner, and in that short time the paper was taken. With someone so watchful I dreaded spending another night alone in my apartment on the fire escape. My feelings must have been pretty obvious because Dirck smiled reassuringly.

"I wouldn't worry if I were you. I hardly think anything will happen tonight," he said, belying all of those previous emphatic warnings. "And I'm going to spend the night with Richard, if he'll let me."

He turned to Richard, who nodded. "If you want anything, Chris, just tap on the steam pipe there in the corner three times. I'll hear it and tap back and be with you immediately."

"What about me?" Mary Ann asked in her high-pitched voice. "You don't seem to be thinking much about my safety."

Something closed back of Dirck's calm blue eyes. "I think you'll be safe," he said quietly. "And there are two of you in there."

The assurance that Dirck would be within call made me feel a little better. But after the men left with Mary Ann, who was putting childish over Dirck's remark, I locked the door securely this time, thinking what a futile gesture it was. Whoever got into my room before would doubtless manage it again even if the door were locked.

I undressed again, hoping that it would be the last time for one night. And then I sat down at the desk and tried to think up another list of questions. There was so much that I didn't understand. In fact everything and everything mixed up in the murder seemed to have no rhyme nor reason, so I had a hard time getting my thoughts into any constructive shape.

Finally, after what seemed a long time, I scribbled down some questions:

Did the necklace used to strangle Joan Kent come from Tim Lathrop?

How did the street door happen to be unlocked at a quarter of eleven?

Are Adrienne Wells and Kimball telling the truth about the quarrel in the hall?

Is there any ill feeling between Mr. Kimball and his sister?

And at the bottom of the sheet I wrote:

Who took my list of questions?

A Crash

By the time I'd finished I was exhausted and ready to go to bed. The room was so hot that I had to open a window, and of course all of them stuck. I couldn't budge any, except the only one I didn't want to have open, and that was the one overlooking the fire escape. The fresh paint on the window casings seemed to act like cement. So, praying under my breath, I pushed the window up about a foot. The night was clear and not nearly as cold as earlier in the evening, and there was a moon lighting an apparently peaceful world.

A person's capacity for fear must be almost limitless. As I dozed off it seemed to me after all that had happened I must, by this time, be shock proof. The thought was comforting enough at least to allow me to drop off into a light sleep.

I But my theory was blasted within an hour.

I awakened, for no reason apparently, except that I felt a tenderness in the air, the way it is in the summer before a thunderstorm. Lying there stiffly, I strained my eyes towards the fire escape.

And then came the crash that almost made my heart stop beating.

It sounded as though something heavy came hurtling through the open window and broke into a thousand pieces on the floor.

It must have been a couple of minutes before I pulled myself together enough to get out of bed. How I finally moved I'll never know. The shock when I pushed them back, seemed to crumple like paper in the hush that followed the crash. Gropping across the cold floor on all-fours, I tapped on the pipe three times with the heel of one of my red leather mules. It sounded loud enough to wake the dead.

I crouched in the corner waiting for the answer.

It did not come. There was no sound from the room above me. Strangely enough my first reaction was not of fright. I clung feverishly to the idea that both of the men must be sound asleep. So I clutched the slipper again and banged this time even louder and more urgently.

I waited there in the dark, my hands pressed against the cold floor to steady myself. It seemed more like hours than seconds.

Still there was no answer from the third floor. There was nothing but an awful engulfing silence.

What had happened to Dirck and Richard?

Surely one of them would have awakened the second time if they hadn't heard me before.

The third time I rapped I knew, fearfully now, that it was useless.

Either there was no one up in that apartment or something had happened to them.

A Faint

I tried to think what to do next and finally forced myself to crawl across the floor to the window.

On the small rug below the sill my hands closed on moist earth. Moist earth and sharp, jagged fragments of pottery.

Bob's large pot of geraniums, that I'd forgotten to take off the window sill before I went to bed, was broken. That was the noise I'd heard.

But how could it have happened? There wasn't a breath of air stirring, not even enough to move the curtains, and the jar was very heavy.

I was certain it couldn't possibly have blown off onto the floor.

Cautiously I got up and with my body wrapped in the chintz curtain I peered out of the window. For a moment, blinking in the dark, I couldn't see a thing.

After a moment there came a muffled sound from below. Fearfully, I strained my eyes downward and in the yard I saw two figures moving about and heard footsteps scraping on the cement walk. As I bent forward one figure seemed to look up towards my window and, in a muffled voice, called my name.

Afterwards all I could remember was that I recognized the voice so it must have been the great relief I felt that made me faint, much to my shame, for the first time in my life.

When I came to in a pool of mud and water and red geraniums, the lights were on and Dirck and Richard were kneeling beside me, pouring water all over my yellow pajamas and the remnants of the plant.

"Thank God, you're all right!"

Dirck said in a choky voice. "Chris, I'll never forgive myself for frightening you so badly."

I couldn't even give him a reassuring answer. My voice was lost somewhere down in my chest.

He helped me crawl out of the debris. My pajamas were plastered to my skin, and with eyes averted he handed me my bathrobe. I tried to laugh and failed miserably. And when with Richard's help they finally got me into a chair and closed and locked the window, I managed to summon voice enough to ask what had happened.

They shook their heads, refusing to speak. Richard pulled a blanket off the couch and wrapped it around me, while Dirck mopped up the water and did a gentleman's best cleaning up the bits of broken pottery and geraniums.

"We'll talk later," Dirck said. "You're as white as a sheet. Have you any whiskey or brandy upstairs, Richard?"

Richard brightened. "A bottle of cognac. It wouldn't hurt any of us to have a drink."

"That's swell. Will you get it? We've got to get her back on her feet."

I looked down at my drenched pajamas. "You go, too, Dirck. I've got to climb out of those things or I'll mildew."

"Take it easy now, Miss Hawthorth," he stalled. "You've had a pretty bad shock."

DECLINE REPORTED IN STEEL OUTPUT

Buying Now Only in Small Lots, Survey Shows.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, Feb. 12.—A complete about-face in steel buying is cutting production rapidly and the bottom is not in sight, said the magazine Steel today.

Output dropped last week to 11 per cent of national capacity, a decline of 5 1/2 points added to last week's 5 points, and compared with the recent peak of 95 per cent.

New business represents somewhat less than 50 per cent of capacity," Steel's survey shows, although shipments of material previously ordered indicate consumption above that figure.

"Buyers have done a complete about-face since last fall, placing only small lots for early needs and in some cases being intent on reducing stocks," Steel says. "There is little evidence that the bottom has been reached."

The survey shows declining operations in the automotive industry affecting steel volume. Last week's assemblies of 93,085 units fell off another 3,000 units.

Among the largest steel bookings are 3,800 tons for a Chicago viaduct and 1,800 tons for a gov-

Revival of U.S. Corn Export Business Threatened by Crop in Argentina

Prospects Good for High Yield in Southern Nation; Harvest To Start Soon.

By the Associated Press
CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—American corn may be nipped at the bud when the expected new Argentine crop comes to market in about two months, trade statistics indicated.

United States' principal competitor for this market, is having a re-energizing effect on domestic sales abroad. However, war developments could change the outlook materially, grain men said.

New Argentine corn is quoted so much cheaper than American grades to European importers that large quantities have been booked far ahead of delivery period. This difference in price partially offsets the shipping advantage enjoyed by North America due to lower freight rates and war risk charges in time of war.

U. S. Export Stamp
U. S. export business in corn, which in 1938 reached its greatest proportions in 16 years, slumped sharply last year. Sales were slightly in excess of 32,000,000 bushels compared with almost 150,000,000 the previous year. However, with the exception of 1933, the 1939 business was the best in ten years, comparing with exports of around 140,000 bushels in 1934 and about 500,000 in 1935 and 1936. In 1937 the United States imported more than 80,000,000 bushels.

May corn in Buenos Aires is priced around 36 cents a bushel, about 20 cents below the corresponding contract here. New Argentine corn for May-June shipment also is priced on an F. O. B. basis to the United Kingdom, biggest European importer, at around 36 compared to 69 for U. S. No. 2 yellow for shipment from Baltimore this month. A year ago Argentine corn was more than 10 cents higher than it is now while the Chicago price was 7 to 8 cents lower.

Harvest Starts Soon

Argentina has about 21,000,000 bushels of old corn available compared with 17,000,000 a year ago but the new harvest will begin late next month and on the basis of heavy acreage and good weather one of the largest crops on record may be harvested. Argentine farmers planted 36 per cent more corn acreage than last year, the second largest area to be put in corn in a number of years. Recent private estimates of production have varied all the way from 275,000,000 to 400,000,000, comparing with 191,485,000 last season.

Private estimates indicate that since Nov. 1 the United States has shipped about 14,000,000 bushels of corn compared with 13,000,000 a year ago. Since last April 1 Argentina has cleared 119,000,000 bushels against 107,000,000 the corresponding period last year. South American shipments have totaled 19,000,000 bushels since August 1, compared with 10,000,000 a year ago.

Grain prices advanced the past week due largely to improved commercial demand particularly for wheat. The bread cereal rose 2 1/2-2 3/4 cents. Corn 1-1 1/4, oats 1 1/4-1 1/2 and rye 1 1/4-2.

Your Income Tax

GROSS INCOME, NET INCOME, AND SURTAX NET INCOME.

Three of the terms used in the income-tax law, namely, gross income, net income, and surtax net income, should be noted particularly, inasmuch as they are vitally important to the whole subject of the income tax.

Gross income includes in general all income from any source whatever, unless specifically exempt from tax by law. The gross income of a person engaged in a usual business consists of the gross profits on sales, plus any income from investments and incidental or outside operations or sources. With respect to the usual business in which purchases and sales of merchandise are involved, the return must show the gross sales, purchases, and the cost of goods sold. Inventories at the beginning and end of each taxable year are so necessary to correctly reflect the income.

Amounts received as loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation shall, at the election of the taxpayer, be considered as income and shall be included in gross income for the taxable year in which received, if the election is exercised for the calendar year 1939. It shall be adhered to with respect to all subsequent taxable years unless the commissioner approves a change to a different method. (See sec. 223, Revenue Act of 1939).

A lawyer, doctor, architect, physician, dentist, clergyman, author, or other professional man must include in gross income all fees, salaries, and compensation of any kind for professional services.

Net income upon which the tax is assessed is gross income less the deductions allowed by law. Such deductions include business and professional expenses, such as salaries, pensions, and bonuses to employees, taxes, losses, interest, bad debts, depreciation, depletion, contributions, etc. Failure to full understand deductions from gross income and credits against net income has resulted in numerous errors on the part of taxpayers.

An earned-income credit is provided in addition to the personal exemption and credit for dependents, etc., for the purpose of computing the normal tax. Having arrived at the net income, the next step is to deduct the personal exemption and credit for dependents. The balance represents the surtax net income. The next step is to deduct from such balance the earned-income credit and other credits to which the taxpayer is entitled. The remainder represents the amount of net income subject to the normal tax of 4 per cent. Any amount of surtax net income which is in excess of $4,000 is subject to the surtax. The surtax is to be computed in accordance with the rates provided for in the various so-called surtax brackets.

Speeding straight for the camera is Taisto Maki, Finnish distance runner, getting in trim at Columbia university in New York. Maki, in U. S. with Paavo Nurmi, flying Finn of another generation, will tour the country for the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund.

APPROPRIATIONS TO COME BEFORE COUNCIL TONIGHT

City council is slated to make appropriations for 1940 when it meets tonight at 7:30. The appropriation ordinance, as it now stands, calls for approximately $200,000 for operating expenses, a few thousand dollars more than was appropriated or spent last year.

Representatives of the civic affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce are expected to call on council tonight and check on what has been done toward increasing railroad crossing protection for pedestrians and motorists.

It is doubtful if any action will be taken on relief financing, a problem which has confronted the city since the defeat of two special tax levies recently. Mayor Snare said the city is awaiting word from the state welfare department on a list of possible sources of relief revenue.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Malta Fever

It was about 50 years ago that Bruce, an English army doctor, reported a new disease from the island of Malta. It was a long-continued, mild fever, caused by a germ which infected goats. The germ got into the goat's milk, and as goat milk is the regular dairy product in Malta, the disease was frequently transmitted in the human population.

For a long time it was complacently supposed that Malta fever did not appear outside the island of Malta. That complacency was due for a rude awakening. The first cases of Malta fever or, as it is called here, undulant fever, seen in the United States were of the chronic type, all in soldiers or sailors who were hospitalized at Hot Springs, Arkansas, with diagnosis of chronic rheumatism.

Many Cases Reported
Since 1920 many cases of the fever have been reported in the United States. It is, in fact, our commonest continued fever (with the exception of tuberculosis). The sources of infection are cows and pigs as well as goats. American herds are widely infected with carrier animals.

The acute form is well known as a low fever of long duration, sometimes prostrating the patient.

for three months or more. But the germ is hard to down; even when apparently recovered, a person may be a carrier or the victim of chronic brucellosis (still another name for it).

The commonest form is like the original cases—a chronic rheumatism. But nearly any part of the body may be the seat of the symptoms. Harry and Dicky Perplexed Over the Arrival of Harps.

I WENT back to my room smiling at Mary's silence that I read for a while. However, I share her predilection for exciting detective stories as an "escape mechanism" from troublesome problems, and I promptly ensconced myself on my chaise longue with the book in my hands, and read until Katie's knock and excited voice put an end to my respite.

I thought I knew the reason for her excitement. I had not told her that three harps were enroute to the farm house, and the arrival of such an unusual cargo would be sufficient to throw her into one of her emotional turmoils.

But that it was something more than the mere arrival of the harps I learned when she fairly burst into the room at my "Come in!" "Oh-hi Miss Graham!" she exclaimed. "Soch a doings outside! Men mit beeg troock and beeg boss on it start coming in gate, and stalo cops dey stop dem, and men say dey been sent for, and cops get Meester Graham and Meester Underwood out, and dey say dey know nodings, and cops tell troock to get back, and men say Meester Veritzen he tell dem to come, and den Meester Graham send me a rooning to get you. He say maybe you know vot all the shoolin's fer."

Mirth Provoker Katie's excitement was so ludicrous that I had hard work to keep my laughter muscles in order. But I managed to tell her, "Tell him I'll be right out," which sent her flying back to the door, and enabled me to get my risibles in shape before I followed her.

I found Dicky and Harry confronting a truck driver, who was demanding heatedly and profanely why there had to be "all this row" when he had his orders from his people to deliver three harps to Mr. Philip Veritzen at the Graham farm house. As I came up Dicky whistled and shed a vehement question at me.

"Do you know anything about this particular hill of beans?" he asked.

"Yes, I heed it," I retorted, and he gave me a reluctant grin.

"I thought so, Harry," he growled, and as Mr. Underwood cocked an inquisitive and mischievous eye at me, my husband broke into emphatic speech.

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do Rub chest, throat, and back thoroughly with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth. Right away VapoRub goes to work to relieve the misery. VapoRub brings double relief because of its double action. It acts both as a stimulating poultice and a medicated vapor. Its poultice action penetrates the surface skin; its soothing vapors are breathed direct to irritated air passages. Try VapoRub and you'll find that often by morning the misery of the cold is gone.

Letting Facts Speak About Funeral Costs

Because the Schaffner-Denzer Funeral Home is a large building with an acre of grounds, some people may conclude that funeral costs here are necessarily high. That conclusion would be wrong. Of course it costs money to maintain such a well equipped establishment, but volume regulates funeral costs just as it does mercantile or manufacturing costs.

Many families prefer Schaffner-Denzer Funeral Service. The result is that all patrons get more in service, appearance and value for their money. As indisputable evidence of this fact and as a matter of public information we print the following tabulation as shown by our books:

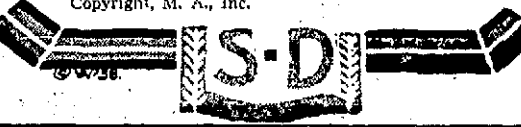

THIS RECORD OF OUR CHARGES

81 Funerals cost $100 or less	The prices shown are for adult funerals only and cover our entire charges. The only further cost was the amount paid to the cemetery. Many of these funerals were held in our funeral home for which there is no extra charge.
39 Funerals from $101 to $200
114 Funerals from $201 to $300
122 Funerals from $301 to $400
37 Funerals from $401 to $500
40 Funerals from $501 to $700
15 Funerals more than $700

Schaffner-Denzer Funeral Service is available to every family in Marion or vicinity. We have served people of all faiths and creeds.

On a Rampage!

January, 1940, was the coldest month in the last 22 years. Average temperature for the month was 17.7 degrees—just 17.6 degrees colder than the average temperature a year ago.

Whatever fuel you used, it took a lot more to heat your home. Not only did families who regularly heat with gas use more, but those who depend upon other fuels resorted to radiant heaters and range events for supplementary heat. The total volume of gas handled through our lines exceeded any previous 31-day period in our history!

Years of engineering research and investments of millions of dollars were necessary to prepare us to meet such an emergency. No customer was without gas through failure to supply. No regular industrial user had to curtail or shut down, facing men out of work.

Likely your gas bill for January was considerably higher but, when you consider how gas service met your emergency, you'll agree the service was worth it. We are sure our customers join in thanking our many hundreds of employees who endured unusual hardships to meet these extreme demands.

Huge Army Arrives from Australia and New Zealand.

SUEZ, EGYPT, Feb. 12—One of the greatest armies ever transported by sea landed here today from New Zealand and Australia to join the British-French allies' forces in the Near East.

A tent city on the edge of the desert was partly prepared for the husky army welcomed at the end of their 10,000-mile voyage by Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden with a message from King George VI.

The New Zealanders and Australians were all volunteers, many of them sons of troops that crossed the seas to fight in Britain's army in the past war.

A Reuters dispatch passed for transmission from Suez said the great armada of transports and British warships were anchored "as far as the eye could see."

How many additional troops had arrived was not disclosed.

All Political Activity Halts for Week.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12—Political activity halted today as the dominion mourned the death of 84-year-old Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada since 1935, novelist, lawyer and newspaper man.

Lord Tweedsmuir died last night in the Montreal Neurological institute after the third operation since a fall last Tuesday. Five attending physicians said the blocking of a small artery in the brain caused him to fall, "thereby adding a concussion of the brain."

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King recalled all his ministers who are campaigning in the coming general elections, and governmental activity throughout the dominion was suspended.

Among hundreds of messages received by Lady Tweedsmuir was one from President Roosevelt saying he was "shocked and greatly grieved" at her husband's death. The President met Lord Tweedsmuir twice in 1936.

The body of the governor-general will lie in state at Ottawa in the senate chamber before funeral services Wednesday. Burial will be in Great Britain. A special train will take the body to Ottawa tomorrow.

Citywide Vesper Service Held By P. T. A. As Anniversary Feature

The twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Marion Parent-Teacher association council, the thirty-ninth anniversary of the state P. T. A., and the forty-fourth anniversary of the national P. T. A. congress were observed in a vesper service held yesterday afternoon at Epworth Methodist church under auspices of the council.

Several hundred persons attended. The procession was led by the Eastside Mother'singer chorus in costume, followed by past presidents of the council led by Mrs. John Oboorn, first president, presiding over the units and all those taking part in the program. Mrs. Fred Sinning played the processional march. On the altar table were bouquets of jonquills and blue sweetpeas, tied with blue ribbons, carrying out the P. T. A. colors of gold and blue. Dr. Edward T. Waring, Epworth pastor, gave the invocation and led the responsive reading.

The 60-voice Harding high school choir, directed by L. G. Jones, music supervisor, sang "Bow Down Thine Ear," by Morgan, "The Angel and the Shepherd," an old French carol, and "Nature's Praise to God," by Beethoven. Marjory Callahan, contralto, and Donald Myers, tenor, were soloists for the second number. Following a Scripture reading by Mrs. Frank Robinson, the Mother'singer chorus sang an anthem, "The Lord's Prayer," directed by Mrs. Stuart Shipman.

A P. T. A. history, compiled by the state historian and covering the wide field of youth training which the organization has been instrumental in developing, was read by the council president, Mrs. W. E. Orcutt. A candle lighting founders' day ceremony was conducted at the altar with Mrs. Orcutt dedicating the service to the rekindling of the flame of inspiration. All those taking part held lighted yellow candles tied with blue ribbons. At the close the lighted candles were placed on the table and the past presidents of the council were called to the front of the auditorium where they were presented with bouquets. Present to receive the tributes were Mrs. Oboorn, Mrs. Cora McKee, Mrs. E. H. Morgan, Mrs. Katherine Quinn Smith, Mrs. Frank M. Knapp, Mrs. J. M. Quigley and Mrs. Walter Shealy. Mrs. Guy Hulse of St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. Elvira Houser and Mrs. David Peterson were not present. The last two bouquets were presented to Mrs. George W. Myers who started the Mother'singer movement in Marion in 1920, and Mrs. Eugene Moore, first director of a Mother'singer chorus in Marion.

A sermonette on "Parenthood," by Dr. Harry J. Bell of Central Christian church was preceded by a song, "The Holy City," by Mrs. Curtis Laubner, and prayer by Rev. H. C. Ahrens of Salem Evangelical and Reformed church. The service closed with the singing of "Day Is Dying in the West," by the Mother'singer chorus, and benediction by Dr. Bell. Miss Maye Evangelina Lawrence was organist for the service and a group of fathers served as ushers.

Victor Herbert's Life Dramatized in Palace Film

The influence of Victor Herbert and his melodies on the country during the early years of the century is dramatized in the colorful, tuneful picture, "The Great Victor Herbert," featured on the Palace theater bill through Tuesday.

From the opening scene until the end, the picture is packed with Herbert's immortal songs. Among the 28 compositions featured are "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Someday," and others that have become classics.

The producers of "The Great Victor Herbert" have based the picture on the composer's friendship with a young actor and actress who rise to fame in his operas.

Mary Martin and Allan Jones are starred and the film is skillfully spun around their romance and marriage. Susanna Foster, a talented 14-year-old singer, makes her first screen appearance as their daughter. Walter Connolly gives one of the best performances in his career as the amiable, sympathetic Victor Herbert.

The bill also includes an excellent March of Timothee, "The Republic of Finland," showing how Finland won her independence from Russia in 1919, how she built up one of the soundest republics, and how she is now fighting to defend her boundaries.—C. W.

Where Tornado Hit

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 12—This tornado-torn city, its death list cut to 17, but its battered mid-section still under martial law, began rebuilding today with assurance "the sky's the limit" in federal financial aid.

The revised estimate of dead—one white woman and 18 Negroes—came from Red Cross Field Director James W. Cullen. He said elimination of duplications had pared the list from an earlier figure of more than 20.

Damage calculations ranged from $3,000,000 to $9,000,000 from the twister—60 seconds of devastation that ripped through 30 city blocks early Saturday.

Even Belligerents Seem Anxious for Honorable Peace

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Whatever else President Roosevelt's exploration of European peace prospects discloses, it undoubtedly will demonstrate that the general public of all the belligerent countries are anxious for any honorable escape from the war nobody wants.

If the undoubted presence of this sentiment were all that is necessary to achieve peace, we could have it by spring and thus avoid the terrible bloodshed which threatens as soon as good weather comes. Unfortunately, however, the thing isn't so simple as that, although many there are who think it should be.

Old Argument Appears

We are now up against the argument which is as old as the human race—that a negotiated peace will only breed another war and that the conflict must go through to a decision which will permit a conqueror to impose terms on the defeated. Both sides have announced that they won't accept a "patched-up" peace.

If we accept the declared position of the belligerents as the Washington investigation gets under way, they are worlds apart. The Anglo-French allies are standing pat on their aims of restoring the independence of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria, crushing Hitlerism and eliminating any possible threat of German aggression. Nazism is equally firm for a Hitlerian peace, which is "to have and to hold."

That certainly is a tough nut to crack, although we are entitled to note that the terms set forth are the "baking prices."

Heer Hitler has made it amply clear that he is most desirous of peace—his peace, of course.

Will Try Force First

I cannot conceive of Hitler's abandoning any of his major claims without first hurling his full military strength against his opponents in an effort to repair his position and turn the tables on them. That is the logic of the situation.

So it is difficult to see how at least a great spring offensive can be avoided, probably in the western theater of war. If the Nazis do launch it, the allies likely will.

Should that offensive result in a major defeat for either side, it might be that peace would then have a chance.

The idea that lasting peace must be built on economic stability, which Secretary of State Hull has worked on so long and so patiently, will receive great support in Europe when the line comes. I have talked with many statesmen over there who agree with our secretary in this matter.

TAFT CHARGES PRESIDENT IS FORGETTING ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—President Roosevelt stood accused today by Senator Taft, Republican of Ohio, of "backsliding on the question of economy" since he made his budget recommendations to congress.

The senator said President Roosevelt was now opposing drastic reductions in federal spending and as a result "advocates of extravagance are being handicapped."

Taft's statements were made during a radio debate last night with Senator Byrnes, Democrat of South Carolina, on the American forum of the air.

Byrnes replied that the budget should be balanced by a "surgeon" and not a "blacksmith." He recalled that in a recent statement Taft proposed expenditures be reduced from $49,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 annually, but a check of the Ohioan's methods of accomplishing the reduction left him $1,745,000,000 short of his goal.

ANTI-WAR STAND CHEERED BY YOUTHS

Declare They Won't Follow President Into Battle.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Cheers, yells and stamping which greeted demands for continued American neutrality prompted leaders of the American Youth Congress to propose today a youth demonstration on the April 8 anniversary of the United States' entry into the World war.

Taking their cue from some 3,000 shouting delegates at the final congress session last night, the assembly of the congress began discussing plans to tell the world that "the Yanks are not coming" again.

The delegates were silent when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt assured them that "I don't think for a minute that the President would do one thing that he thought would bring us into war, because he knows what that is like."

But they leaped to their feet in a frenzied ovation for sharp-spoken Ravi Patel, a member of the National Congress of India, who declared that many youths who otherwise follow the President "also say quite frankly that they will not follow even Franklin Delano Roosevelt into a war."

Leaders of the congress agreed to discuss with C.I.O. leaders today the prospects for a political alliance with Labor's Non-Partisan League.

FINLAND

wanting and predicted an end soon to the battle on this front, now 11 days old.

Although Soviet Russia has thrown her greatest offensive might into her effort to crack the Mannerheim line here, it still is intact as far as I could observe.

Within a mile and a half of Summa, Soviet point of entry, the Soviet offensive, where I visited Finnish positions in a tour of the front about and by Aled, I found no indication that the Finns' steel-and-concrete line had been pierced.

Russians Grow Tired

The Russian onslaughts continued with infantry attacking under the protection of artillery barrages raining shells at a rate of almost two a second.

But still a Finnish commander, "tiredness on the Russian side is apparent." Despite such novel equipment as steel shields and tanks which spit flaming naphtha, he said Soviet troops were protected inadequately from Finnish fire and easier to stop than earlier in the battle.

"There has been no chance to count enemy losses, but last Friday on a 300-foot stretch 100 Russians were killed by our fire. The total killed has been many thousands of Russians," he said.

The Russians have been given huge amounts of vodka to drink before fighting. We have found kegs of it on the battlefields. My men now for sure one day Soviets show from behind, we believe by political intrigue forcing the fight."

Blunt troops, charging in waves after waves, have sustained some attacks six to 10 hours, the Finns said, but other onslaughts have been brief.

A slackening of Soviet activity to the east and west of Summa yesterday was regarded by Finnish officers as a sign the Russian offensive can not be kept up much longer unless reinforcements arrive.

by having the board raise the tariff rates as high as may be necessary, but if this does not prevent imports, to impose "import restrictions" which he describes as "limitations, prohibitions, charges and exactions other than duties imposed on importation or imposed for the regulation of imports."

Since he believes in such a policy, it is perhaps understandable why he thinks it necessary to feel the country ready for exchange control. For this policy of the embargo would not only wreck foreign trade but would wreck the currency and financial markets of the United States and elsewhere into such disorder that it probably would be necessary, even for us, to establish government control of all exchange transactions. Thus Section 11 becomes intelligible in the light of Section 13. For Section 13 might succeed in producing the calamity that Section 11 would then be needed to deal with.

If it were not obvious that Mr. Vandenberg is an innocent man, one might wonder how he ever came to sponsor a proposal so utterly alien to American principles, so naively acquiescent in the very worst practices of the age we live in. Mr. Vandenberg cannot possibly mean seriously to commit his party and his country to the economic philosophy which his bill describes. He cannot have understood what he was doing when he accepted these ideas.

But this time somebody has certainly sold him a pup.

U. S. Asked To Repair Memorial Built at Canton in Honor of McKinley

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Uncle Sam is being asked to repair the McKinley memorial built at Canton, Ohio, in 1901 with money contributed by school children and other admirers of the late president.

Representative Secombe (R-Ohio) said the request would be presented this week to a house appropriations subcommittee before which representatives of the McKinley memorial trustees will appear to argue that the government should put the memorial in good condition.

Interior department officials made a survey of the project and estimated that $75,000 was needed to make the structure presentable.

If the money is obtained, Secombe said, the trustees would arrange to maintain it. Since 1901, the memorial has been maintained privately by friends and neighbors of McKinley.

Charles West, former congressman and White House man, is appearing frequently on Capitol hill. He talks with house members, as friendly as ever, but reticent as usual about what he is doing politically, if anything.

Representative Hunter (D) intends to ask hearings by the special security board on Ohio's claim for old age pension funds withheld in October, 1933. He conferred last week with Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer and quoted the latter as saying he was ready to cooperate in any efforts to adjust the claim.

Hunter said he would propose that Altmeyer reopen the case and invite the state to present new evidence at hearings.

Altmeyer opposes legislation to authorize payment. President Roosevelt vetoed the bill and the house sustained him.

They beat today's trek of the fashionables back to the farm by 22 years. Three years after they married they bought a 60-acre farm outside Cincinnati. It had an old farm house. For two years they got along with coal oil lamps. Got along with a water pump for several more. But they loved it. Four sons were born. They are 14 to 24 now. All in school. They work and play together. It's a non-smoking family from father to the 14-year-old.

They divided farm duties. She manages the flowers. He raised some blue ribbon winners. He took over the farm produce. Now his strawberries, raspberries and asparagus are favorites in Cincinnati markets.

This year is going to be more than busy. He wants to be in Washington for every session of the senate. But he has speaking engagements for every week-end. That means a great deal of traveling. She says he can rush, if it's necessary, but he will fly only when she can't succeed in talking him out of it.
